School News

Aston Tomlinson and Myrtle Dayton have returned to school after a period of illness.

At a special meeting called in activity period Friday, Mr. Bruin congratulated the campagners for their work in getting money and subscriptions for the Crowell Co. Thornton Gillaspie then awarded the prizes to the following: Vivian Oliver, Christabel Routon, Myrtle Dayton, Alese Goff, Mary Horton, Mary Ellen Tanner, Evelyn Walker, Charlie Baker and James Denton.

We are glad to welcome back Francille Brown who has been attending school in Clifton Forge for awhile.

The Freshman Class has completed their course in business arithmetic and are starting their study of algebra.

It is needless to say that the Biology Class is studying the fish, for everyone knows it, who follows his nose!

The geometry class is preparing to take its second standard examination Thursday and Friday.

The winning team in the recent subscription contest was given a party in the town hall last Wednesday at the expense of the losing team. The party was thoroughly enjoyed and is referred to as the best Hi has ever had. A number of new games and contests filled the evening's program capped at a late hour by refreshments. May another contest come soon!

Owing to the fact that Rev. J. M. Franklin, the Bible teacher, has to attend the pastor meeting in Lynchburg, every Monday, it has been necessary to change the Bible class from the first period in the afternoon to the first one in the morning. The other classes come in their regular order. This is a great help to Mr. Franklin as the former period has caused him to lose too much of his time from his other works.

member of the four hundred, that she arrived at the railroad station in a huge limousine, was escorted with due deference into the parlor car, and vanished around the bend still waiving to the large number of F. F. V's who strolled up and down the platform for the purpose of seeing her off. The rest was left to the imagination. A big mansion, maids and butlers and house guests.

We are older now, and are surprised to find Miss Suffolk-Jones wading thru the mud to catch the bus. She climbs in as best she can, tucks her week-end hat box beneath her feet and is whisked away in the sputtering bus, heavy with tobacco smoke from puffing gentlemen on their way to Lynchburg to see the movies or buy some clohtes for the wide eyed boys beside them. She gets off at the bus station beside the tombstone yard, catches a car, and is soon welcomed by some friend who meets her with pleasant words, and then goes down into the kitchen and tries to find an extra plate for the beans.

Therefore, Mr. Editor, when we write you that Miss Suffolk-Jones, of the well-known Piedmont Jones family, has spent the week-end in Lynchburg, you will not think of the first picture I have conjured from a chapter in some dime novel (Price $2.50). Instead, of the house party, rowing, motoring and late suppers, you will visualize the young lady seeing Tim McCoy for twenty cents, and eating onion hash for six o'clock dinner. So there—

Well, I have exhausted my slender theme, and like many modern poets, have written a great deal and said nothing. So I will mail you my usual lists of wek-enders, and rest until next week.

Yours ever,
BIG ISLAND AGITATOR
